

ARMS AROUND AMERICA Press Kit

Dan Froot & Company creates theater pieces, podcasts, and community gatherings that foster dialogue around hunger, race, gun violence, and other pressing social issues.

Comprised of a dynamic group of LA-based performers, and led by award-winning artist Dan Froot, the company currently focuses on gathering book length oral histories and adapting them to theatrical form.

Known nationally for their collaborative approach to theater-making, and for engaging deeply with communities and partners, DF & Co puts art at the center of civic discourse!

Our current project, Arms Around America (AAA) is based on stories of real families around the country whose lives have been shaped by guns. We spent several years conducting book-length oral histories of families in South Florida, Western Montana and Southern California. We then wrote audio dramas based on those stories, which have one iteration as a podcast, and a second iteration as a live show.

By opening a window into these families' lives, we explore diverse perspectives and foster dialogue around the complex roles that guns play in our society. We hope that this project can help us all learn how to maintain each other's humanity when discussing divisive topics.

AAA received a National Theater Project Creation and Touring Grant from New England Foundation for the Arts, and commissions from the National Performance Network and UCLA's Center for the Art of Performance. The AAA podcast launches in June 2024, and premieres on stage in November 2024 at The Nimoy Theater in Los Angeles, with subsequent national touring.

Arms Around America Synopsis

- Tiffany's doctoral dissertation is a critique of military-styled baby carriers, but after a series of school shootings, she bulletproofs her own children's backpacks.
- Gabriel's trusty handgun goes missing during a road-trip. Does he report it, and risk being charged for illegally crossing state lines? Or keep quiet, and take a chance on being implicated when the gun is used in a crime?
- June's in-laws have a history of self-harm. When her teenage son asks for his deceased father's gun collection, June has to weigh their power to destroy against their potential to heal.
- Patricia survives intimate partner violence. Now she lives to heal herself and others.
- Surrounded by police brutality, generational poverty, and gun traffic, brothers Rich and Dave work together to create a safe space for their young children.
- And finally, a theater artist from Los Angeles struggles to write a play about Aaron, a self-defined "liberal gun nut," only to find himself implicated in Aaron's story.
